

Alliance for Vulnerable Mission Bulletin – April 2010.

- Woodrow Walton found an account that speaks to vulnerable mission, originally written by a Johannes Eckhardt in the Middle Ages. See <http://www.vulnerablemission.com/johannes-eckhardt/> for Walton's summary of what Eckhardt shared.
- For many thoughts on 'alternative' ways of doing education in the interests of the urban poor see <http://www.urbanleaders.org/ma/>
- Here's a blog that is discussing Faith Based Organisations. (This blog is not by a Christian or Christian organisation). <http://www.owen.org/blog/3124> Please contribute to this discussion.
- Norwich Central Baptist Church in UK are holding a 'vulnerable mission' event on 26th April 2010. Details here: <http://www.vulnerablemission.com/norwich-event/>
- Jim Harries has a biography of his missionary service posted on the web. It is about 25,000 words, and includes a few photos. <http://www.jim-mission.org.uk/harries-bio.pdf>
- To see the outline of Jim's proposed travel to Bible and Theological Colleges in Germany, UK, Canada and the USA later this year go to <http://www.vulnerablemission.com/jim-harries-travel-2010/>
- Jim wrote a report of the 2009 AVM conferences. This was held up for copyright purposes, but is now available. Go to: <http://www.jim-mission.org.uk/articles/report-2009-conferences.pdf>
- "Our "rugged individualism" hinders us from living in dependence on God's Spirit day-by-day—while our industrial/technology heritage enhances our ability to control outcomes and accomplish more through a "task-oriented" approach to life and problem solving." shares the latest addition to the 'sailboat' discussion that is of much relevance to AVM. Go to <http://sailingfriends.wordpress.com/> to find out all about it.
